Philip C. Rodkin is an Assistant Professor in the Child & Adolescent Development Division of the Department of Educational Psychology at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign (Ph.D., 1994, Social Psychology, Harvard University), His research centers on children's peer relationships, particularly connections between aggressive behavior, social networks, and social status.

Ernest V. E. Hodges is an Associate Professor in the Department of Psychology at St. John's University (Ph.D., 1996, Developmental Psychology, Florida Atlantic University).

His research interests focus on the interplay between peerrelationships, parent-child relationships, and social cognitions, particularly how they affect the development and consequences of antisocial behavior and victimization by peers.
